Overview

When will Southeast Asia's largest energy storage system be up?

The Republic will achieve its target of having “giant batteries” to store at least 200MW of energy three years early, when Southeast Asia’s largest energy storage system on Jurong Island is up and running by November.

What is Singapore's biggest battery storage project?

Singapore has surpassed its 2025 energy storage deployment target three years early, with the official opening of the biggest battery storage project in Southeast Asia. The opening was hosted by the 200MW/285MWh battery energy storage system (BESS) project’s developer Sembcorp, together with Singapore’s Energy Market Authority (EMA).

Why is energy storage important in Singapore?

Puah Kok Keong, Chief Executive, EMA said, “As Singapore expands solar deployment, energy storage systems will become more important to enhance grid resilience and ensure power system stability. I welcome the development of energy storage systems that are safe, cost-effective and space-efficient.”.

When will Singapore's energy storage system be completed?

EMA’s director of industry development Jeanette Lim said that the energy storage system had to be completed by December last year in order to provide energy, reserves and regulation services to enhance Singapore’s grid resilience, to manage any protracted market and energy supply volatility.

How much energy storage will Singapore have by 2025?

With just one project, EMA has achieved and exceeded Singapore’s deployment target of 200MWh of energy storage by 2025. The target was set as part of the EMA programme, Accelerating Energy Storage Access for Singapore (ACCESS), through which the EOI solicitation was held.

Will Singapore have 'giant batteries' to store 200MW of energy?

Singapore will achieve its target of having “giant batteries” to store at least 200MW of energy three years early. The 200MW system is currently being installed across two sites on Jurong Island – Banyan and Sakra. Read more about it here.
